LONG-TERM ENGAGEMENT IN PHYSICAL ACTIVITY
PREVENTING LIFESTYLE DISEASES

Being physically inactive has proven to be one of the major health challenges globally, leading to lifestyle diseases. Despite the facts about the benefits of being physically active, an inactive lifestyle and its negative consequences remain a concern worldwide.

Research has shown that being physically active could increase your energy levels. It could also aid in preventing lifestyle diseases and prevent people from turning to harmful substances when confronted with difficulties in life.

Recent research in South Africa has also found that a variety of factors could influence people's participation in physical activities. These include intrapersonal, interpersonal, environmental and social factors.

Committing to an action plan could assist in ensuring that you improve your health; however, having a proper plan of action is important.

SOUTH AFRICAN YOUTH: LACK OF REQUIRED SKILLS RECRUITMENT TRENDS

Most South African post-school youth are still struggling to find suitable jobs, mainly due to a lack of required skills and their inability to keep up with the latest recruitment trends in the job market.

Recruitment trends change over time. The expectations of companies, human resource recruiters and candidates continually change, meaning that one needs to adapt to these changes accordingly.

The most common concern employers have about young job seekers is that they may not realise that they are mainly responsible for risking their chances of getting employed. Employers are also of the opinion that most of the young people that are getting employed need to be more willing to upskill themselves in the job.

Another alarming matter is that young job seekers may not be keeping up with recruitment trends being used by recruiters.

Young job seekers should also realise the importance of having a personal brand, meaning a personal and unique way in which they could market themselves in today's world of work.

HUMAN FACTORS CAUSING ILL HEALTH
STEREOTYPING AS A SOCIAL FACTOR

Stereotyping¹ as a social factor may lead to social classification of others, which is one of the reasons for the 'them' and 'us' attitude that some people may have. Treating people in this way may eventually have a negative impact on the mental health of such victims.

Glossary:

¹Stereotyping: often involves judging people based on various factors, without considering their individual qualities and characteristics

[Adapted from www.simplypsychology.org. Accessed on 04/01/2023.]

RESPONSIBILITY OF COMMUNITIES IN ENSURING SAFE AND HEALTHY LIVING
SOUTH AFRICA'S WATER SYSTEMS IN CRISIS

Water systems across the country seem not to be effectively maintained, leading to the poor quality of water in most communities. The behaviour of communities has also been found to be one of the contributing factors that lead to water pollution.

Intervention programmes intended to promote safe and healthy living also seem not to be sustainable. Most communities now seek to petition¹ local government for their urgent action in terms of the water crisis.

Glossary:

¹petition: a formal written request, signed by many people, urging authorities in respect of a particular cause

[Adapted from <http://jamiat.org.za>. Accessed on 09/01/2023.]
